

Data Protection for GDPR and DPA18

CPD Course Number: #1002714 | CPD Points: 5.5

Overview

Data privacy is becoming business-critical for companies who gather, store or process personal information to support the decisions alongside global regulations and the ethical handling of consumer data. Educating the entire workforce and supply chain in the fundamentals of GDPR and DPA18 reduces the risk of sensitive data being lost, stolen or damaged from the very people who have authorised access to it.

What You Will Learn

This course will cover video, reading and practical application to ensure everyone is aware of the following:

- Why new data protection laws have come into place
- The role of a data processors including transparency, lawfulness and fairness
- What is data and what is personal data
- Who owns person data, and protecting your information?
- What can happen when your data is lost, leaked or stolen
- Who and what are data subjects
- People's individual rights
- Giving consent for your data to be used in a certain way
- Processing of personal data
- Lawful bases for processing
- Data processors

info@universaldataprotection.com